

Stacy McClure MD

I been a licensed board-certified Dermatologist for the past 16 years. I am a conventional trained MD finishing at UT health science in San Antonio in 2000. I completed an Internal Medicine Internship at Rush University in Chicago, a 2 year Clinical Trials Fellowship at Northwestern Dermatology and then a Dermatology Residency at Northwestern. After completing my Residency I was an Associate Professor in Dermatology at Loyola University for 3 years. For the past 13 years I have been in a Private Practice Dermatology clinic. In the Spring of this year I completed a Fellowship Certificate program in Integrative Dermatology.

I grew up in Texas and have lived in the Chicago area since residency. Prior to medical training I was an actress for 15 years. I have 2 children and enjoy photography, snow skiing and traveling. I currently work in private practice and enjoy teaching residents who rotate through our practice. I came to understand CIRS after having family members who were affected and because of this have focused on how the environment impacts my patients and how I can better serve them.
